

Ms. Radhika Suri

Ms. Radhika Suri, Director, Environment Education has been associated with WWF-India, country's leading conservation organization since 2015. She has been instrumental in drafting a strategy for implementation of environment education initiatives that aim to build a generation of environmentally conscious citizens. At WWF-India, she began with drafting an Environment Education strategy that catered to a wide range of audience through multiple mediums that include technology and implemented it across 14 states in the country.

In a short span of five years, at WWF-India, she has conceptualized and successfully rolled out many educational programmes for school children, youth and senior citizens. Her career is anchored upon 27 years of extensive experience in teaching, curriculum development, setting up and administration of schools and capacity building. Her expertise in merging pedagogical knowledge with an understanding of classroom dynamics and deep domain insight has culminated into many success stories.